They went by rail but returned home in an auto of his former neighbor, Mr. William Gault, and son Emmitt. Emmitt has a position in Reading, Pa., paying $3,000 per year. They left Ellsworth, O., Sunday, 6 a. m. and reached Mr. Bingham's home at 11 p. m., after spending some few hours in Pittsburgh and at other interesting places enroute.

BEDFORD CHAPTER NO. 4

Sons of the American Revolution Launch a Very Worthy Project.

At a meeting of Fort Bedford Chapter, No. 4, Sons of the American Revolution, held in the Grand Jury Room, 2 o'clock, Memorial Day, a project was opened to publicity by which the old Washington headquarters, opposite the new Bedford Garage, will be taken over by the order and kept in a state of preservation and made as antique as possible to resemble the old style at the time Washington was quartered there.

It is contemplated to restore the building to its original appearance, make the first floor fireproof, to be used as a museum and antique shop of war and old time relics which the people may collect and contribute, and provide block showcases for the same. The old historical paper and manuscripts are to be placed in these dustless and secure cases, also.

The second floor, front room is to be fitted up for the use of the Chapter and the second floor, back room, is to be furnished with arm chairs, bed and furniture said to be used by Washington while he had quarters here. The remaining rooms are to be used by the janitor of the building.

This is a philanthropic endeavor which should be endorsed by all our townsmen and country folk and will be appreciated by all the favorite sons of Bedford County. The Chapter thinks it can be made a self-supporting project after renovations and readjustments are made by selling souvenirs and antiques. An option has been secured on the building and the colonial appearances are to be restored by popular subscriptions, of which notice will be given later.

From the descendants of the men whose endorsement of the Pennsylvania State Society and has been assured that the National Society will at the next executive meeting endorse the project.

From the descendant of the men who composed the three companies of soldiers who went to the front, there can be secured for membership in Fort Bedford Chapter at least $500 members. This is really as much a county affair as it is local.

Col. John W. Avirett

Colonel John W. Avirett, editor and publisher of the Cumberland Evening Times and proprietor of the Cumberland Alleganlian, died suddenly last Friday morning at his home in Cumberland of heart trouble. He was a son of the late Rev. James Battle Avirett, an Episcopal clergyman and one of the first commissioned chaplains in the Confederate army. For nine years he was State Game Warden and was also very successful in the newspaper field. His wife, one daughter and two sons survive.

Funeral services were held Monday morning and interment was made in Rose Hill Cemetery, Cumberland.

Mrs. George Lloyd

Mrs. George Lloyd died at her home in Liberty Township on Thursday of last week. She was aged 21 years, two months and 10 days. She was a most excellent woman and an affectionate mother and her early death will be greatly missed in the home, as she leaves to survive her husband and three small children. She was a member of the Church of the Brethren, faithful to its tenets.

The funeral took place Sunday afternoon, services being held at the home conducted by Elder Replogle. Burial was made in the Fockler Cemetery.

Helen Moore

Helen, the fourteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Moore, died at their home in Bedford Township, on Sunday of heart trouble. Besides her parents, four brothers and two sisters survive.

Short funeral services were held at the home Wednesday morning, and the body was brought to the Lutheran church where Rev. H. E. Wiedand officiated. Interment was made in Bedford Cemetery.

Helen was quite a favorite with all and will be missed, not only in her own home, but by many friends.

Mr. W. H. Miller and Squire Reuben Miller of Chapman's Run were business callers at Bedford yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilchrist and little son of Akron, O., are visiting among relatives and friends at this place. They made the trip in their auto.

Prof. H. Atlee Brumbaugh of Roaring Spring was in town this week on business. Prof. Brumbaugh is agent for the Ford automobile and he and his partner have sold 98 this year. He is supervising principal of the Taylor Township schools and candidate for Assembly in Blair County. He is a busy man.

Miss Ada Shoemaker of Colerain Township and friend, Miss Denie Diehl, of Johnstown left Thursday morning for Philadelphia to attend the commencement exercises of the Medico Chi College, where Miss Shoemaker's brother Ross will graduate. They will also visit Atlantic City and Lancaster, the former home of Miss Diehl.

Mr. and Mrs. George Crissman, with their son Grover, his wife and two children of Pittsburgh, motored to Bedford and spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Lysinger.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Griffith and little daughter, Margaret May, of Pittsburgh spent several days here this week with Mrs. Griffith's sisters, Mrs. William Snell and Miss Annie Amos.

DEMOCRATIC UNITY

A Campaign of Vigor for Redemption of Our State.

NEW ERA IN PLATFORM WRITING

Harrisburg, Pa., June 3.—The Democratic State Committee met in the Board of Trade Rooms, Harrisburg, and adopted resolutions, elected officers, arranged for a party platform and transacted such other business as was expedient and timely.

Hon. Roland S. Morris was re-elected Chairman and the party organization as before was re-elected without a dissenting voice.

A vigorous campaign was outlined and a general good feeling for harmony was in evidence. Daniel L. Hart, City Treasurer of Wilkes-Barre and an ardent Ryan supporter, read the resolutions heartily endorsing the selected candidates, which brought forth a spirit of harmony by rounds of applause. Congressman Palmer, when he praised the action of City Solicitor Ryan in supporting the ticket and offering his aid in winning over the State to Democracy, was applauded vigorously. Great applause attended the mention of Wilson and Bryan. Eugene C. Bonniwell, W. J. Brennan and many other supporters of Ryan were there and actively participated in the convention.

Local option and woman's suffrage were opposed by many of the State Committee, but when Hon. Vance C. McCormick mentioned local option in his principles the convention roared with approval. It shows how the wind is blowing in Democratic camps all over the State. The Democrats used to be known by their red noses but that sign has passed over to the Republican ranks and is one on which the Republicans hope to win their election next November.

After the business of the convention was transacted the various candidates were called upon for speeches. Palmer spoke as follows:

The Democratic party in Pennsylvania at the first direct primary in the history of the State has selected me to carry the standard of the party in the first popular election of a United States Senator. I take up the task with full appreciation of the high honor which my party has done me and of the grave responsibility which that honor entails. I shall endeavor during the canvass to represent the party's cause with strict fidelity to its time-honored principles which have endured as the fundamentals of free government since the foundation of the republic, and which are now happily being translated into concrete enactments to assure the continued happiness, welfare and prosperity of all the people. If elected, I shall strive with all the power and energy that I can command to justify the confidence of the people of my native State by the advancement of their interests in legislation, unmoved by any thought of personal advantage, unswayed by any consideration of the selfish demands of particular interests, however insistent in the claim of special privilege.

The Democracy of Pennsylvania by herculean effort in 1912 cleansed itself and, purging its organization of influences which made it unfit as an instrument for good government, took its place at the head of the column of progressive Democracy in the nation. It exercised a controlling influence in naming the party's standard-bearer in the memorable struggle of that year a matchless leader of undaunted courage, consummate ability and high ideals, who received the electoral vote of all but five States in the Union, and who as President of the United States has written a record of achievement in the single year of his administration absolutely unparalleled in the history of our time. I have been a small part of the organization at Washington which, by co-operation with the President, has made that record possible, and in order that there may be no misunderstanding anywhere of my position in this campaign, I here declare that I approve of every part of that record—I apologize for no part of it—I glory in it all. Time will justify every act of this administration as in the real interest of the masses of the people. The promises made in our covenant with the people when seeking their support have been kept by the party when in power.

Kept Long-Time Pledge

In response to an overwhelming popular demand we have reduced the tariff taxes, in strict accordance with the Democratic theory that taxes should be levied only for the purpose of raising revenue necessary to economically administer the government, and this has been done without injury to any legitimate industry in the country. The operation of the new tariff law has demonstrated the ability of the American producer to compete in the American market with the producers of foreign countries, although the increased competition resulting from the decreased rates of duty, has, in many instances, brought lower prices of American products for the benefit of the consumer. In no case, so far, has the American producer been compelled to reduce the price of his product below that which will permit an adequate and honest return upon his capital invested.

The necessary readjustment of prices which must follow the making of every tariff reduction, in order for the people to read the intended benefits, may create temporary disturbances in certain lines of trade and

A PRAYER OF THE SPRINGTIME

In Good Housekeeping Magazine I am thinking today, O Lord, of the living things of the field. Springtime is on the earth. In song and nest-making and the gathering of food, birds are active. The animals of the wild call to each other. Love wakes and trembles at a new creation, and what's ever has the sap of life is animated into lively force.

It has put me upon thinking; has made me to feel a responsibility toward these. For I am the connecting link between them and you. Perhaps that is what mankind is for. We inhabit two realms—with our bodies, the kingdom of the seen, with our minds, the kingdom of the unseen. Man is the middle form that links earth and sky together. Then I, O Lord, am a kind of little god to these furry and feathered folk. They can see you only through me. It makes me stand in awe of the power you have given me. Their dumb asking eyes look up into mine, sort of in the same way that I look up to you. They are afraid of me—I am of such power, and they are weak. Also my wisdom exceeds their dark understandings, as your wisdom exceeds mine.

If I am to be a little providence to these, and stand to them in your stead, help me, O God, to play the part. As I wouldn't like to have you scare me, teach me never to scare them. And they are so easily scared—timid, fluttering things, seeing but a short way, and their minds all confused. Horses and cattle and birds, domestic animals and the wild, their lives are bound up in my hand, even as my life is bound up in your hand. Help me to win their confidence. As you are patient with me, cause me to be patient with them. As you are never cruel toward me, forbid that I should ever be thoughtless or cruel toward them. Their little brains will make mistakes—even as I, in your sight. Teach me to bear with them, that my gentleness may make them great.

And this will be my plea, O God, when at the last I stand up before you to be judged: Treat me the same way in which I have treated the dumb animals over which you have trusted me with dominion. And against that day, make me kind. Amen.

Injured at Garage

Last Saturday John Hafer, aged about twenty years, met with a serious accident at the Hoffman Garage. He was engaged in repairing a spring when he was crushed between the car upon which he was working and one entering the garage, and badly injured about the chest and shoulders. He is now at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hafer, of Cumberland Valley and is improving nicely.

Lincoln Chautauqua

The Lincoln Chautauqua under the auspices of the B. H. S. Alumni Association will open here on Wednesday, June 24, and continue for six days. The program is a varied one and has been arranged by much planning and great care. Only those who purchased and use season tickets from the opening prelude to the close will appreciate the strength, worth, and entertaining value that has been crowded into it. Many local persons have them for sale and an early purchase will increase Chautauqua interest.

New Adventure for Broad Top

D. E. Donaldson & Company have purchased a White auto-bus for accommodation of the traveling public between Six Mile Run, Defiance and Riddesburg. Mr. Donaldson was completely burned out recently but announces that he will continue in the livery business as usual at Six Mile Run and Saxton and invites the same liberal patronage as before from the public.

Automobile Accident

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hagerman of Kansas City, Mo., driving an Auburn car, met with an accident at The Narrows last Sunday night about 10 o'clock. Mr. Hagerman's lights went out when approaching the turn there, and not knowing the road, his car crashed into the stone wall, throwing both occupants out, slightly injuring them and causing considerable damage to the car. It was brought to the Hoffman Garage and repaired, and the tourists left on Tuesday for Philadelphia.

Farmers' Institutes

The County Board of Farmers' Institute Managers will meet at the County Commissioners' office on the second Tuesday of June, to arrange for the place where the Institutes are to be held this season. All of our people who desire Institutes ought to attend this meeting and present their claims. This board is composed of the local members of the State Board of Agriculture, and one representative from each County Agricultural Society, the Pomona Orange, County Alliance and other kindred organizations. If you find that you cannot attend this meeting, address a letter with your request to W. F. Biddle, Chairman of Board of Institute Managers, care of County Commissioners.

Mrs. Mary Sheridan

Mrs. Mary Sheridan died at her home in Stonerstown Friday evening, May 29, aged about 85 years. She had been an invalid for a number of months on account of a complication of ailments incident to old age. She was a woman who had the high esteem of her neighbors.

Her funeral took place on Monday, interment being made in the Catholic Cemetery at Dudley.

Smith of Schellsburg, Harry of Getstown, Grant and Draper of Colerain, Mrs. Nathan Oldham of Johnstown and Mrs. Harry Darr of Ohio. One brother and two half-brothers also survive.

Funeral service was held Tuesday afternoon and interment was made at Pleasantville.

THE HOUSE IN SUMMER TIME

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene
by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D.

When our remote forefathers lived in caves and trees their household goods were limited to a favorite club, a stone ax and a few skins.

The question of cleanliness was a matter of as little consideration as the question of ventilation. Both of these took care of themselves.

In the thousands of years that have intervened, with increasing intelligence has come added accumulation of household goods. Nowadays the poorest individual among us would find it difficult to load his belongings on his back and move when the fancy struck him.

At this particular season of the year the stuffiness and over-furnished feeling of our places of abode is a reminder of some of the good points in our prehistoric mode of life.

For the sake of comfort, coolness and cleanliness dispose of your heavy curtains, thick carpets and other unseasonable furnishings. During the summer season the windows are open and more or less dust sure to enter the house.

To eliminate unnecessary furniture from over-crowded rooms gives an agreeable feeling of space, making the house easier to keep clean and more sanitary and comfortable during the heated term.

A porch is one of the most useful and enjoyable additions possible to a house in summer. As a safe play-room for the baby, a cool and comfortable rest or workroom for the housewife or a sleeping room at night, it adds to the health and comfort of the entire family.

About Water

Most of us realize the importance of pure water when we can't get any. But ordinarily we never give it a thought.

Do you know, for instance, that 75 per cent. of the carcass you carry around when you put on your clothes in the morning is water? That, assuming the scales register you at 150 pounds, 113 of those pounds would go up in steam if you should happen to get to a certain very hot place?

Well, that's a fact. A man is almost as well watered as some railroads. And here's another fact: Just to keep the mixture in you at the right degree of fluidity, just to make up for the body's evaporation and leakage through discharges, you need, every day, to take into you, through food and drink, an ounce of water for every pound and sevenths that you weigh.

Say you weigh 150 pounds. This means that you need a daily water dosage of more than half a gallon simply to keep from becoming crusty and dusty.

But there's one fine thing about water as a beverage; you don't need to be afraid of an overdose. It cleans the "innereds" as a rainfall flushes a sewer—so don't be afraid to go to it heartily and often.

Here's looking at you!

Have been tested by many kidney sufferers.

They are endorsed by Bedford people.

Mrs. W. Trout, 202 Spring St., Bedford, Pa., says: "I believe that I had all the ailments that usually accompany kidney disease. I suffered from severe pains in my back and sides. I was often very dizzy and spots appeared before my eyes. Finally my ankles and limbs became swollen and I was worried. My son got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Heckerman's Drug Store and I began using them. They did me more good than all the other medicines I ever took. The swelling has gone down, the pains have stopped and I am stronger. You can use my recommendation of Doan's Kidney Pills any time you want to."

THE BATTLE AGAINST THE SLUM

The late Jacob Riis will be chiefly remembered for his campaign against the slums. The results of the movement in which he was a leader has been told by the obituaries, and is an impressive record. At the same time, Mr. Riis noted in a recent magazine article, that there are still 60,000 windowless rooms in New York City, a continuing threat of tuberculosis. The battle against the slum is only begun.

There is one phase of it that has scarcely been touched. No matter how good laws are enacted, slum conditions will continue as long as people herd in congested centers, contrary to economic laws. Some weird and fatalistic suggestion leads people to assemble in these human ant-hills of the big cities. Somehow they prefer that life to health and better paying jobs in smaller cities or the country.

On the one hand the tenement workshop, with sweated workers at a dollar a day. On the other, the depleted farm districts, with the farmers unable to get the help to harvest their crops. What a contrast is this mal-adjustment of modern civilization! Is there not some organization, philanthropic or business, that can undertake the task of breaking up the congestion of the cities, and of connecting the worker with the country and small city job?

To most people the word "slum" conveys a picture of ramshackle tenements and swarming herds of dirty people. But equally dangerous conditions can be found in half of our small cities and country towns, with the difference that there is no Jacob Riis in sight to work for the children.

The little group of village houses without proper drainage, with a contaminated water supply, with all sexes and ages in one or two dirty rooms—these are conditions often found in semi-rural life. They are quite as ominous as those which Riis exposed in the metropolis.

Council Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Borough Council was held Monday night. All Councilmen were present and the following bills were paid:

E. P. Gumbert and Annie G. Cramer of Altoona.

H. Clay Wolfe and Alva Wendle of Fishertown.

Joseph Wilson of Akron, O. and Martha Thomas of Defiance.

James D. Price of Hopewell Township and Alma P. Clapper of Yellow Creek.

Harry D. Zembower and Annie V. Brant of Cumberland Valley.

Wendell-Wolfe

A very pretty and unique wedding took place at the home of Mrs. Emma Wendell Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock when Miss Alva Wendell was united in marriage to Clay Wolfe of Fishertown by Rev. Rose, pastor of the M. E. Church, Schellsburg.

The home was beautifully decorated with mock oranges and peonies and the bride was very tastefully dressed in white Crepe de Chine and the groom in conventional black. They entered the parlor unattended to a wedding march played by Miss Nellie Oldham. A beautiful table was spread to about twenty guests. A number of handsome presents were received. The happy couple will reside on a farm near Fishertown.

SEA DISASTER

Ship Empress of Ireland Goes Down With 934 Persons.

Sinking in ninety feet of water within 15 minutes after being rammed amidships in the upper reaches of the St. Lawrence River early last Friday morning, the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Ireland carried down with her more than 900 of her passengers and crew. Of the 1,367 persons on board, 433 were saved, making the death list 934.

Looming up through the river mists, as the Empress of Ireland was lying to, waiting for the fog to lift or day to break, the Danish collier Storstad crashed bow-on into the side of the big Canadian liner, striking her about midway of her length and ripping her side open clear to the stern. The crash occurred not far from the shore off Father Point, 150 miles from Quebec.

W. C. T. U. County Convention

Tuesday and Wednesday were "red letter" days in the history of Bedford County White Ribboners, it being the occasion of the fifth annual convention of the County Woman's Christian Temperance Union. The day sessions were held in the Bedford Presbyterian Church and the evening in Assembly Hall.

A complete report of the convention will appear in next week's Gazette.

The evening lecture on "National Constitutional Prohibition" by Mrs. Florence D. Richards of Columbus, O., was delivered to a splendid audience whose interest was most marked throughout the entire evening.

Mrs. Richards is a lecturer of exceptional power and the logic of her reasoning is most convincing. She has the happy faculty of entertaining as well as instructing her audience which makes her a speaker of additional worth.

The "License and No-License Pageant" was a most telling representation of conditions in county, state and nation. Seven ladies with white banners represented the dry counties of Pennsylvania while sixty others carrying umbrellas suggestive of wet county conditions, marched in solemn procession through the spacious hall to their assigned places. "Pennsylvania" (impersonated by Miss Bain) then appeared robed in black. A salute to the flag, a short rally cry and the casting aside of the black mantle from the state brought hearty response in song from the large delegation.

The convention closed enthusiastically with Wednesday afternoon's session.

Paint?

There are two good reasons for painting often-enough or even too-often. One, to look prosperous; two, to be so.

Nothing does one more credit or gives one more credit than paint, supplemented of course by what goes with it; and paint costs nothing.

True, the first cost is $5 or $6 a gallon put-on; but it saves more than that in the property; saves it from slow going-down—not always slow—it drops with a jump when water gets in on wood and iron.

Try wood and iron cost nothing, kept dry by paint.

Better paint when it needs it. Paint never goes-down in the sense of being more profitable next year.

FATAL RAILROAD ACCIDENT

Engine Jumps Track and Five Men Killed on Sunday at Cook's Mills.

Five trainmen were killed and three injured on Sunday when a passenger locomotive on the Connells-ville Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad was derailed at Cook's Mills. An extra freight crew had boarded the engine to ride down the line in order to relieve a crew whose working time had expired. In some manner, the engine, which was running at 63 miles an hour, suddenly left the track and rolled over an embankment, dropping into the field below.

The dead are: Harry Hughes of Pittsburgh, engineer; G. C. Eyster of Connells-ville, conductor; H. S. Lloyd of Connells-ville, flagman; G. W. Dean of Cumberland, brakeman; Harry Riser of Cumberland, engineer; Eugene Miller of Cumberland, fireman. Grant Miller of Cumberland, fireman, was removed to the Western Maryland Hospital, where he died Tuesday morning. The others injured are J. J. Romsburg of Connells-ville, brakeman, and William Semple of Glenwood, fireman.

EPWORTH LEAGUE

Juniata District Convention to be Held in M. E. Church Next Week.

An event of more than ordinary interest will be the gathering next week in the Bedford Methodist Church of the delegates from the various Epworth League chapters of the Juniata District for the holding of their 25th annual convention. Some noted speakers, and about 75 delegates are expected, all of whom will be the guests of the local chapter by whom they will be royally entertained.

The program is built with the idea of helping every League out of ruts and over difficulties. Subjects like these will be thoroughly discussed: Ways and means for the best devotional meetings.

Business Meetings—How to make them the monthly rallying time of the League.

Practical Mercy and Help—No theory, no notice.

Department of World Evangelism in action.

A Model Social—Something worth while for Fourth Vice Presidents.

The Junior League of Bedford, wide awake and active, will give a demonstration of their work.

Rev. R. H. Gilbert, D. D., Berwick, will sound the temperance bugle.

District Supt. B. H. Mosser will be on hand with his usual straight-forward shoulder answers to queries.

Wednesday evening, Rev. Mark Kelley, D. D., Olean, N. Y., will speak upon the subject, "The Master's Method in the Modern World."

Thursday evening, Rev. Glen A. Baldwin, Troy, Pa., will speak of the Bible's More E. L. Institute instructors (July) will make an address upon the theme, "The High Calling to Be a Man."

Convention key note, "Spiritual Evangelism." Dr. C. T. Dunning, Hollidaysburg, will sound it Wednesday at 3 p. m.

The sessions of the convention will be open to the general public, and all are cordially invited.

Clearville

June 2.—D. C. Blankley of Steekman and H. I. O'Neal of Everett, Rt. 4, were in our village on business on Wednesday.

On Thursday David A. Trail and family moved to Everett, where Mr. Trail is employed by H. S. Coleman.

On Friday Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Steekman and daughter Ethel of Steekman were shoppers at this place.

Miss Irene Stayer of Everett, Rt. 3, visited her sister, Miss Clemma, on Saturday and Sunday in our village.

Mrs. John Sigel is treating her house to a fresh coat of paint which adds greatly to its appearance. E. H. Blankley is doing the work.

Thomas Fletcher and George Snyder and son Allen of Roaring Spring visited their parents and the last named his grandparents in Monroe Township Saturday and Sunday. They made the trip in Mr. Fletcher's auto.

Saturday night the Clearville Male Choir held a very successful festival in our village.

Editor Barkman and wife of Bedford were guests of the former's sister, Mrs. C. C. McQuire, at their place Saturday night. On Sunday they, together with Mrs. Mundwiler and children and Robert Barkman, motored to Herman Barkman's at Chapman's Run, where they dined, returning in the evening.

Memorial Day was observed with appropriate exercises in the Clearville Union Church in the forenoon of said day, when a program of choice music, with recitations and addresses, was rendered. The recitations were given by Sarah and Evelyn Meakle, the addresses by Rev. John H. Barney, whose address was reminiscent; the second was by Prof. J. Willis Barney, who dwelt on the battles of peace to be fought. Rev. D. G. Heister dwelt on the earthly immortality of persons and Rev. A. R. Garland spoke of the meaning of Memorial Day. After the service in the church the graves of the soldiers in the adjoining cemetery were decorated, followed by a song and the closing prayer by Rev. J. H. Barney.

for all and special privileges to none. The honor of the country, which had agreed that there should be no discrimination in the use of the Panama Canal, as well as the integrity of the party which had always defended our people against the iniquity of subsidies, demanded such a course.

And now the Congress is engaged upon the last step in the series of great accomplishments by which the Democratic party proposes to satisfy the conscience of the country and redeem its pledge to legislate solely in the interest of the people. We are about to pass bills which will destroy private monopoly in whatever guise it may appear, permit freedom of industrial endeavor and restore competitive conditions in all lines of business activity. They will remove from business life the perilous feeling of uncertainty resulting from the contradictory interpretation by the courts of obscure statutes, assure to business men more safe reliance than the termination of a law suit, and by clearing away the debris of misunderstanding and hesitancy, give to business a firm foundation on which to build the long-continued prosperity. They will not only do these things, but they will guarantee to labor the same right which capital has always enjoyed, to organize and by co-operation assure a profitable sale of its only product.

Good Enough to Attract Foes

These things have been accomplished by the party in the nation under the efficient leadership of our great President, who has rallied to his support in these efforts to translate the popular will into remedial laws, not only his own party, united as it never was before, but a vast body of citizens who hold their devotion to the public weal above their party ties. This record is the final harvest of the combined effort of forward looking, progressive men, gathered from both of the historic parties in the nation. For be it understood and remembered that in every case these measures received generous support in both branches of Congress from many members who were affiliated with other political parties than our own. Never before did purely political measures appeal with such compelling force to the reason and patriotism of men who refused allegiance to the party primarily responsible for them. In details, progressive men, trained in different schools of political thought, may differ, but in the large view of the great good which has come to the people by these achievements all such will see alike.

The aim of all men not bound by the fetters of thoughtless devotion to a party name has been to bring our government closer to the people, and made its every act serve their welfare and their happiness. One great party has been shattered in twain because its powerful leaders foiled the progressive intent of the rank and file behind them. Our party has accepted the opportunity to serve this great purpose with a fidelity to popular will heretofore unknown in the history of the Republic; and now by the token of what has been done we invite the co-operation of progressive, forward-looking men in the work yet to be accomplished.

We would rid the country of the last vestige of control of its governmental operations by the great interests, for whose special benefit men presumably chosen by the people have devoted their talents and their energies in public place. We would rid this State and the country of the block in the path of progress which the continuance of a Penrose in the United States Senate implies. We would make Pennsylvania no longer an island in the sea of progress. We would bring it into harmony with the progressive spirit of the nation, and make it certain that the progressive thought of the majority and not the reactionary tendency of a minority shall have voice in the Senate of the United States.

Penrose a Moral Issue

A leading member of his own party has characterized Penrose as a moral issue. He is that, and more. He is the political remnant of a regime that has gone, never to return. He is "the last leaf upon the tree in the spring." He is out of harmony with the spirit of the times; out of sympathy with the present aspirations of the people; out of touch with the awakened conscience of the nation. He clings to a system which has everywhere been condemned and repudiated, because supported by interests which impede the material progress of the people—a system whose operations have been characterized by studied defiance of the interests of the people and constant effort to promote those of the favored few.

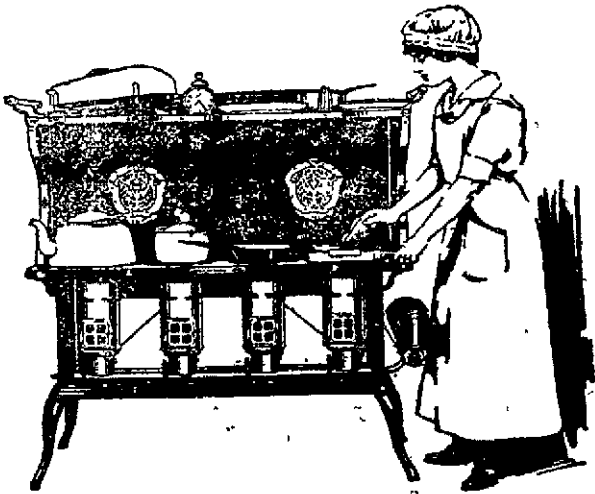

From his entrance into the Senate of the United States to this hour he has bitterly opposed every forward step; he has gladly supported every backward movement. His voice has been raised at Washington as his hand has been felt at Harrisburg, always in the interest of special privilege. In the first session of Congress of which he was a member he came to the rescue of one of the most offensive trusts in the country when he voted against the proposed investigation into the methods of the American Sugar Refining Company to control legislation and the charge against Senators of speculating in sugar stocks. In his last session he dropped the manipulation of his machine in Pennsylvania long enough to make a trip to Washington and oppose the President in his effort to defend the national honor in Mexico without resort to arms, cast a cynical slur upon the volunteer soldiery of the nation then offering to support the President, if necessary, and publish an interview showing his willingness to vote for a subsidy for the shipping trust, coolly reversing his own position for political effect.

Between these extremes of his Senatorial career is the record of nearly 18 years marked by repeated service to the great interests. His great forensic effort was expended in an unsuccessful attempt to overthrow the will of the people of Pennsylvania by seating a Senator whom they had repudiated in the Legislature, only to find a plant executive willing to undo their work; his frank alliance with special interests was exhibited in his condonation of fraud and crime to hold a place in the Senate for his co-laborer in the field of corrupt politics, Lorimer, of Illinois.

He has opposed every reduction in tariff taxation; he fought the imposition of an income tax; he helped delay the establishment of the reform demanded by the people for many years, the direct election of United States Senators, and having fought so long and valiantly to prevent the people from electing their Senators, with brazen assurance he now asks them to make him the first chosen under the system which he condemned.

June 3—On Sunday Geo. Weyant killed a blacksnake which measured six feet, eight inches. Who can beat it for 1914 in Bedford County? Let's hear from them.

The Memorial services at Schellsburg on the 30th were well attended from our end of the county and all say they were the best ever held in the burg.

Espy Dull and son William of Sulphur Springs spent Sunday at George Fisher's in our vicinity.

George Ellenberger, wife and all of Johnstown, spent Saturday and Sunday with their sister, Mrs. J. H. Miller, near Helixville. They made the trip in the former's auto.

Henry Ellenberger was a guest at the J. H. Miller home on Sunday.

The dance held at the home of A. P. Hillegass Thursday night was well attended.

Peter Hillegass put his steam sawmill in operation on Monday and is now slicing out the timber for his customers. J. H. Fair, one of our old time sawmill men, is handling the lever on the mill.

Simon McCreary, who spent the past year near Denton, Md., was a guest several days the past week at his parental home here.

Henry McKinney transacted business at New Baltimore on Friday.

Clarence Beckley of Pleasantville was in our midst Monday buying fresh cows.

John Egolf and family and Frank Smith and family, all of Mann's Choice, were seen passing through our town on Sunday in their autos.

Mason Burket and wife of Mann's Choice were also through here.

Edward Fair recently treated his house to a fresh coat of paint which adds greatly to its appearance.

Elmer Fisher and wife of Johnstown spent from Friday till Monday with their parents, Mrs. Sophia Fisher and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Suter.

Harry Suter is pleased over the recent arrival of a boy at his home.

Harry Bence and wife of Reitz were guests of the former's brother, John Bence, and family near here on Sunday.

Rolla Hillegass, P. R. R. fireman of Conemaugh, was here for a few days recently greeting his old time friends.

GAINS 40 POUNDS IN 40 DAYS

Remarkable Results of the New Tissue Builder Tonaline Tablets in Many Cases of Run-Down Men and Women.

Prove It Yourself By Buying a Box of Tonaline Tablets Now.

"By George, I never saw anything like the effects of that new treatment, Tonaline Tablets, for building up of weight and lost nerve force. It acted more like a miracle than a medicine," said a well-known gentleman yesterday in speaking of the revolution that had taken place in his condition. "I began to think that there was nothing on earth that could make me fat. I tried tonics, digestives, heavy eating, diets, milk, beer and almost everything else you could think of, but without result."

Any man or woman who is thin can recover normal weight by the best new treatment, Tonaline Tablets. "I have been thin for years and began to think it was natural for me to be that way. Finally I read about the remarkable processes brought about by use of Tonaline Tabs, so I decided to try them myself. Well, when I look at myself in the mirror now, I think it is somebody else. I have put on just forty pounds during the last forty days, and never felt stronger or more 'nervy' in my life."

Tonaline Tabs are a powerful inducer to nutrition, increases cell-growth, food, increases the number of blood-corpuscles and as a necessary result builds up muscles, and solid, healthy flesh, and rounds out the figure.

For women who can never appear stylish in anything they wear because of their thinness this remarkable treatment may prove a revelation. It is a beauty maker as well as a form builder and nerve strengthener. Tonaline Tabs cost $1 for a 50-days' treatment, at druggists, or mailed by American Proprietary Co., Boston, Mass.—Adv. 5 June 4t.

Memorial Services at Cessna

The Memorial services held at Cessna under the auspices of the Grange were a success and those who took part deserve great credit for the way they handled their parts. Brother Harry C. James was introduced as the orator of the day by Brother E. A. G. Hermann. He gave a review of the war and the causes leading up to it. Everyone seemed to be pleased with the service.

It is a very noticeable fact that Memorial Day is being turned into a day of sports rather than a day of commemorating our fallen heroes. This is a shame and some way should be found to call a halt to that manner of paying respect to those who fought and gave up life, suffered imprisonment, etc., to preserve this great nation. Then there are others who are indifferent and who would not take the time to see that their father, brother, or comrade was remembered with flag or flowers on this great day. If we live until next Memorial Day we will try to rouse more interest and will guarantee another good program. Good citizens everywhere should condemn sports on this day and should lend their aid toward making the day a truly Memorial Day.

HECKERMAN LETTER

Beautiful and Impressive Memorial Day Services Held Last Saturday. Reading, Pa., June 3.—With wonderful veneration the people of Reading on Memorial Day paid their annual public tribute to those who have crossed the Great Divide.

May 30th was set aside years ago as a day on which the memory of the brave men who fell in battle in the terrible Civil War and the survivors who have since passed away shall be honored. The beautiful observance became general and, as a rule, today in every city and hamlet in this broad country each and every grave is visited and a bunch of flowers or a flag is placed thereon. This a hallowed time for all the dead. The last resting places of those who were priviledged in war or peace were just as dear last Saturday as those who were conspicuous as officers. The writer never saw so many beautiful flowers as on that day and he has heard others who live here and have been regular visitors to the cemeteries on this occasion say that never before were the flowers so profuse or so fragrant as on last Memorial Day. Not only were the memories of the deceased fighters in the Civil War honored, but also were the soldiers and sailors of all other conflicts in which this country was involved who are buried here.

Forty-nine years have passed since the volunteers of the Civil War laid down their arms. Two and a half millions of men went to that war. Oh, how plainly I see the men start from Bedford. 'Tis said that one-fifth of the above fell in battle or died in the hospital. A million and a half more have since passed away, leaving scarcely half a million still alive to take part in these Memorial services. I remember very well, and it does not seem long either, when Memorial Day was looked forward to as a day of great parades of the veterans who still marched with a firm step and erect heads to honor their fallen comrades. Now, however, there are not many who are able to march and the Grand Army posts are reduced to a mere handful of men.

Two of those who fell at Vera Cruz sleep in our cemeteries and their graves no doubt were suitably honored, but, as is usual, most of the ceremonies will cluster around the great conflict of fifty years ago to save the Union. I have read and also heard it said not unfrequently that Republics were ungrateful, but no such charge dare be brought against the defenders of the Stars and Stripes from 1861 to 1865. Every one of them is entitled to a pension. They have each one earned our gratitude, even if many of them suffered nothing in mind, body or estate, by volunteering. The man who is willing to leave family and friends and bare his breast to the foe takes the chances of death and desires our honor and our reward just the same as he who fell in battle. With halted and limping steps many veterans went forth on May 30, perhaps for the last time, to scatter flowers above the graves of fallen comrades.

Harry Seifert, who lives at 718 Mass Street, is a great chicken fancier and his good wife takes great pleasure in feeding her big flock of White Leghorns. They invited me out to see their chicks, both large and small. Harry is a great surgeon and takes much pleasure in caponizing his cockerels, arguing that caponizing should be carried on at every poultry farm. It will take only a short time for any man to learn to caponize swiftly and properly, and it takes no more to feed and maintain capons than any other chicks. Capons require no special care, such as houses, care of feeding. They are gentle, contented and easy to handle, and they bring just double the amount per pound as you would get for ordinary poultry. Mr. Seifert says that there are always several questions raised by those poultrymen who want to learn caponizing. Any one with ordinary intelligence can caponize in a very short time. The operation is a very simple one, requiring chiefly a good set of instruments, a degree of cleanliness and the dexterity that comes from experience. The beginner should caponize a bird in from 15 to 20 minutes. After a little while he will do the same work in four or five minutes. There is little or no danger to fowls; no great amount of skill or time necessary. The time to caponize depends more on the size of the bird than its age. He never caponizes a cockerel weighing less than a pound or a pound and a half. Most caponizing is done in the spring and summer, simply because the birds come to the proper weight then. The fact is that capons are only on the market for a short season which explains the scarcity of the supply. The time is coming when I believe they will be in market for the year.

CATCHING UP WITH CANADA

Events of Interest From the Seat of Government.

Washington, D. C., June 1.—It has taken the American government a long time to wake up to the fact that the Canadian government has better homestead laws than our own, and for that reason the Dominion has been able to induce hundreds of thousands of Americans to go into Canada. One of the provisions in the Canada homestead law allows an eighteen year old boy to acquire a home, and the result is that young men under age have been taking up the public lands of the Dominion. The proposition for homestead entries by minors has been gaining strength in Congress, and it received an impetus last month when the western governors in their annual conference at Denver, went on record as unanimously resolving that "we approve the plan now before Congress to permit homestead entries by persons over eighteen years of age." The Interior Department and the Agricultural Department have both strongly endorsed the suggested legislation. Since the Secretary of the Interior has been enabled to designate entirely arid lands that cannot be irrigated as enlarged homesteads, enabling settlers to secure 320 acres of land instead of 160, there has been a noticeable improvement in conditions of settlers in sections of the country where grazing has been the principal source of income.

The change in the homestead law by which settlers can acquire a title in three years has more than doubled the entries throughout the United States. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, the total homestead entries throughout the United States were 24,326, covering 4,306,063 acres of land. The three-year homestead law was passed June 6, 1912, and during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, there were in the United States 52,252 final homestead entries, covering more than ten million acres of the public domain.

During the debate in the House upon the bill of Representative Taylor of Colorado, authorizing minors of eighteen years or over, to take homestead and desert land entries, Representative Burke of South Dakota, who is shortly to be advanced to the Senate, used the argument that many of the boys serving in the navy and marine corps are not more than eighteen years old, and that the average is about twenty. He insisted that those boys who recently gave their lives at Vera Cruz were not too young to file on a homestead, and he said that he preferred to encourage the boys to remain at home, to stay on the farm, instead of going into the army and navy. He concluded that if a boy is old enough for military service he ought to be able to file on the public domain. Burke, a Republican, and Taylor, a Democrat, have been two of the best friends the homesteaders had in Congress, and they have both been enemies to what has been termed by them as "professional conservation." Taylor says that "there is no monopoly of agricultural land in the west today, and everyone who has a big farm is trying to cut it up and sell it into smaller tracts." He adds that a comparison of the land laws of the Dominion of Canada with those of the United States, shows a great many more liberal features in the system of occupation in Canada than are found in our own homestead laws.

At the investigation before the Senate in January William J. White, in charge of the immigration movement to Canada, testified that 800,000 citizens of the United States had gone to Canada to take up lands. The United States has just discovered that the Canadian government has been spending between $60,000 and $70,000 a year in advertising in the States along the border, and the greater part of the money had gone into the "patent insides" of country newspapers. Now since the horse has been stolen, Congress is going around to lock the doors, to check immigration.

According to our Agricultural Department the cost of producing wheat in Saskatchewan at fifty-five cents per bushel on the farm, and sixty-two cents per bushel f. o. b. cars. It has been figured out that the Saskatchewan farmers last year realized 14½ cents profit per bushel.

And yet in the face of the long winters and scarcity of fuel in the Canadian Northwest, the clever Canadians have coaxed away 800,000 farmers from the United States. When the People Vote For President

In all this talk of the Republicans and Progressives combining, an all-important matter is usually lost to sight. Several months ago President Wilson outlined a plan for the people to vote directly for their choice for President. Since "Teddy" arrived one of the prominent Progressives at Washington has expressed himself to the effect that the Democrats will attend to it that a law for direct primaries is enacted before the next Presidential campaign, and that it will be so framed that all parties will be compelled to vote on the same be a great boon for the people and will prevent any stealing of nominations or big business juggling of the Presidency.

Rural Postal Delivery in England. United States Deputy Consul General Carl R. Loop at London, advises the Washington government that an experiment is to be made by the post office department of the United Kingdom in the use of motor cycles with side-car attachments for conveying letters and parcels in rural districts, and with this object in view orders have been placed with domestic firms for twenty machines.

It is predicted that in less than a year the horse will have disappeared from the postal service of the United Kingdom, the makers of the motor vehicles being so sanguine as to their suitability for the work of delivery and collection. It is stated that by their use it will be possible to give two deliveries a day in country districts where there is now only one, and at a less cost.

Petitioning in Doctor Cook's Behalf. A petition signed by several thousand citizens of Michigan asking Congress to recognize Dr. Frederick A. Cook as the discoverer of the north pole, has been presented to the Senate. Recently a resolution was introduced by Senator Poindexter to the effect that Congress investigate Dr. Cook's claims. It is urged in behalf of Cook that he has never been given a fair chance to vindicate himself, and that the American people have uncharitably accepted the utterances of Admiral Peary that Cook was handing the world a "gold brick," and have made the Doctor the butt of national ridicule in preference to giving him the simple right of a "square deal."

Colonel Roosevelt in Washington. Colonel Roosevelt swooped down on the Capital, showed the National Geographic Society his new river, dropped in at the National Museum and looked at his old friends that fell before his gun in Africa, talked with a multitude of the country's biggest politicians, and turned national politics upside down, all in a few hours. This is the Colonel's second trip to Washington since he was President, and for exciting incidents there was nothing lacking, to disappoint his admirers or his foes.

Suffragists Never Say Die. Mrs. Robert M. LaFollette, Miss Elsie Hill, daughter of Representative Hill of Illinois, and Miss Genevieve Walsh, daughter of Senator Walsh of Montana, took up the suffrage cause the other day, at the point where the professional suffragists and lobbyists left off, and told Chairman Henry of the Rules Committee of the House that there was no reasonable excuse why his committee should not put the question of votes for women squarely before Congress at this session. Henry is from Texas, and is one of the bulwarks of the Democratic caucus system. He told the ladies that no legislation would be considered that did not have the approval of the caucus, and that therefore they must be content to wait until next session. The suffragists have concluded that this is true, but the ladies mentioned above know the game of politics, and when Congress reconvenes in December they will be at the door of the Democratic caucus demanding that their case be put on the calendar.

The Hen's Soliloquy

Soliloquy of a domineering hen: I had a quarrel with Henry this morning. He was crowing as usual and pretending that the sun wouldn't come up unless he made that awful noise. I told him to shut up, I wanted to sleep. He asked me if I fully understood what I was saying. I told him I guessed I did, and that I understood several other things pretty well too. One was that I laid the eggs and hatched the chickens, while he galled around over the barnyard and pretended like he wanted to fight something, and that I raised those chickens, while he was strutting around the last fall pullets. I told him that hereafter he'd have to sit on the eggs fully half the time and maybe more, and that he'd have to get out and scratch worms for the chickens after they were hatched. Then when I got the chickens off my hands and began to feel giddy and young again, why I supposed they'd take him, cut his head off, and boil him in a pot, so I could have some peace. My, but maybe you don't think Henry got mad. I thought once he was going to knock me off the roost, but he didn't. All day, though, he has been cross and surly, and when I come near, he struts around and crows, and acts like he's not paying any attention to me. I've sure got Henry where he don't know just what to do, all right.—Exchange.

Lincoln Highway Notes. Arbor Day exercises in Nebraska were celebrated on the 22d of April and took the form of tree planting on the Lincoln Highway all across the State.

The Cosmopolitan in a recent number of its miniature edition remarks, tentatively: "This is the day of tearing down the stone walls of isolation to build the stone roads of progress." The Lincoln Highway idea epitomized in nineteen words.

A. R. Pardington, Vice President of the Lincoln Highway Association, is now in Indianapolis, where he is acting as official referee for the 500 mile speedway race.

A movement has been started in East Liverpool, O., and is being pushed by the Good Roads Committee of the local Boosters' Club, for the erection of two porcelain arches at the points of entrance of the Lincoln Highway into the city. The club is going after the porcelain manufacturers and it is expected that sufficient material will be contributed to erect the two arches, which will be the first of the kind in the country.

Lincoln Highway headquarters have received a letter from the Mayor of York, Pa., J. R. Lafean, in which he states:

"The proposition to have the Lincoln Highway pass through our city has been heartily endorsed at a meeting of our citizens, held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce several weeks ago, and the plans which were formulated at that time are being carried out without delay.

"I join with our people in approving the adoption of this roadway through our city and feel that we

"Your association is to be complimented for its successful efforts in this matter and is deserving of the thanks of the entire nation for so grand a work."

Mayor Stolberg of Canton, O., is going to submit to the streets committee of the City Council, a proposition to erect at the eastern and western limits of the city, on the Lincoln Highway, suitable memorial arches such as have been erected at South Bend, Ind., and other points. He expects to have no difficulty in getting the matter through the Council.

Philadelphia Record

Ask a dozen readers of The Philadelphia Record why they prefer it to any other newspaper and you'll get a dozen different answers. It is the favorite of each because it is strongest in the particular news field which especially interests him. Boil down the answers and you'll find a consensus of opinion that it's a well balanced, all-around newspaper, covering with exceptional fairness and accuracy every field of human activity.

The Philadelphia Record rides no hobbies and plays no favorites. It gives all the news for just what it is worth. It steers clear of sensationalism. It is clean and wholesome. Its sporting department is a tower of strength. Its financial reports are authoritative. Producers swear by its market quotations. Its editorial policies command respect and confidence. It's good-natured cartoons inimitably hit off the leading topics of the day. Good judges deem De Mar the best cartoonist in the country.

The same reasons which make the daily issue of The Philadelphia Record a favorite have popularized the Sunday issue. The Sunday Record includes, besides the usual daily features, a live Magazine Section devoted to women's interests, science and invention, the entertainment of the little folks, special articles of news interest, and humor. There is also a four-page section of colored comics and a weekly fiction magazine.

The daily issue and the Sunday issue of the Philadelphia Record, appealing as they do to every member of the family, are leaders in their respective fields, and deserve the popularity they have achieved.—Adv.

Mules, Farmers, Philadelphia Bosses

The mule is stronger than the man. Though the mule is stronger than the man, the man manages the mule. He uses him to his advantage. He puts a bridle and a saddle on him and rides upon his back.

The man puts harness made of leather upon the mule, and by speaking to him and using the whip, induces him to walk and pull a wagon, while the man gets in and rides.

The mule does much hard work, but of the money earned through the mule's hard work, the man appropriates it all to himself.

The mule lives roughly. It feeds from a trough and lies at night upon the ground.

The man eats good food from a table and sleeps in a soft bed. The mule is very useful to the man.

The farmer is stronger than the Philadelphia bosses.

Though the farmer is stronger than the Philadelphia bosses, the Philadelphia bosses manage the farmer.

The Philadelphia bosses put a bridle called "party loyalty" in the man's mouth, a saddle on his back and rides him where he wills. They put harness made of prejudice on the farmer, and by making speeches to him and feeding him taffy, induce him to walk and pull the Philadelphia bosses into office.

The farmer does much hard work, but the money earned through the farmer's hard work, the Philadelphia bosses appropriate to themselves.

The farmer becomes poor and lives but meagerly on a mortgaged farm; he sleeps on a bed of straw. The Philadelphia bosses wax rich. They eat fine food with silver knife and fork and sleep on a bed of down.

The farmer is very useful to the Philadelphia bosses.

The Auto as a Doctor

When wearied from toil, or when burdened with care, There's nothing so good for a man as the air.

Get out in the open and let the sunshine Be balm to the nerves and give strength to the spine.

A spin o'er the country through valley and dale Will bring back the color to cheeks that are pale.

The fragrance of fields in a ride o'er the hills Brings pleasure and profit—it saves doctor bills.

Dull Care is forgotten—at least for awhile— We leave Him at home, and then mile after mile Puts distance between us, until, back at night, We find to our pleasure he's nowhere in sight.

Our tasks are then easy—the whole world is gay; We pitch into work, the while singing a lay,

For, when we are wearied or tired "agin' We bring out the car for another good spin.

But, when one is seeking his life to improve By owning a car, it is then he should use

His very best judgment, for any poor car To'ard bringing him pleasure won't get very far.

When one goes for pleasure, it's pleasure he wants, With none of the little misfortunes that haunt.

He wants to avoid being stuck in the road And made to tell friends they will have to unload.

He wants to ride easy—whatever the speed, He wants as much power—yes, more than he needs,

For though as a rule he may like to ride slow, He wants to be ABLE to "get up and go."

He wants a machine that will climb any hill, For they are the scenery that make the soul thrill;

In fact, when he buys he should then be at ease In knowing 'twill take him wherever he please.

And so, if for business or pleasure YOU buy, Your future success with the auto will lie Not so much in the price—it is all in the make— So pick a Buick and make no mistake.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

The Growth of Population According to the estimates of the census bureau, by July 1 the United States will have a population of 109,021,992 people. This is a gain of over 7,000,000 persons in four years. Such rapid gains look alarming to some people. They begin to think that population will become too congested.

Estimates of the possible population that could be supported in the United States have varied very widely. Prof. A. P. Brigham, a leading scientist who discussed that subject in the Popular Science Monthly a few years ago, had it figured out that this country could support only 305,000,000 people. At present rates that number would be reached in less than 100 years.

The editors of that magazine, however, are much more liberal. They say that three-fourths of our land can be made productive, capable of producing 50 bushels of corn per acre. A bushel of corn has the food value to support a man about a month. That would make it possible for an acre to support four men a year.

They think therefore that 3,000,000,000 people could be fed in this country, on the present basis of production. By scientific methods the crops could be doubled. The development of the tropical regions, which are far more fertile, and exchange of the manufactures of the temperate zone for the food of the tropics, would, they say, permit 10,000,000,000 people to live in our territory.

In Europe every little crevice on the sunny mountain slopes is utilized for little patches of culture only a few feet wide. In this country there is gross waste everywhere. The loss of rainwater, the throwing of sewage containing valuable chemical elements into the sea, and soil and forest exhaustion, are a few of our more wanton extravagances.

The rapid growth of Uncle Sam's family is thus to be welcomed. It may not uplift average prosperity. But it is a welcome testimony to the fact that economic conditions in this country are still very much more favorable than elsewhere.

MOTHERS' PENSIONS

Less Than $9,000 was Spent for the Year Ending May 31st.

Harrisburg, June 1.—More than $90,000 of the $200,000 appropriated for the payment of mothers' pensions reverted today to the State's general revenues. Half of the appropriation was set aside for the year ending yesterday, and less than $9,000 was spent. Under the law the unexpended balance for the year cannot be carried over into the new year for mothers' pension purposes, but reverts to the general fund of the Commonwealth.

A much smaller balance, if any, will be left in the fund a year from today. Payments in May were $2,106, or at the rate of $25,272 a year. Seven counties have accepted the act, and more are expected to do so. However, the mothers' pension plan seems to be regarded as experimental, and many counties are waiting to see how it works out where it has been adopted.

Allegheny County has 44 pensioners, who received $392.50 last month. The State has paid them $1,377.50 in all. Beaver, with 32 pensioners, is now drawing $164.50 a month and has drawn $815.50 in all. Luzerne's 126 pensioners were given $276 in May, and the county's requisitions total $1,066.50. Philadelphia, the first county to accept the act, has 77 pension-drawing mothers. The State gave them $993 in May, and has given them a total of $3,785.50. Schuylkill has 19 pensioners who received $45 last month and have received $545 to date. Westmoreland, with 21 pensioners, got $135 in May and has drawn $385 in all. Potter County is just organizing and has drawn only $100 for preliminary expenses.

The figures here given represent only the State's share of the payments. Counties accepting the act must distribute to their pensioners a monthly amount equal to the sum received from the State, so that the pensioned mothers have received just double the amounts stated here.

Harrisburg, June 1.—The Auditor General, State Treasurer and Attorney General have signed certificates for use in the dissolution of the following corporations: Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad Company, Stow Lumber and Coal Company of North East, Etna & Vesuvius Coal Company of Allegheny County, the McDowell-Huber Company of Philadelphia, the Moose Home Association of Philadelphia, and the Philadelphia Equipment Securities Company.

REPUBLICAN'S VIEWPOINT

The New York Tribune, a strong Republican paper, has this to say concerning the candidacy of Hon. Boies Penrose. The way to follow the advice of the Tribune is to vote the Democratic ticket next November.

"Mr. Penrose should be beaten. It will be a bad thing for public life in America if the forces which he represents triumph in the Pennsylvania Senatorial contest. It will be a ruinous thing for the Republican party if Mr. Penrose and his kind come to the front in it once more. The Republican party will be stronger when it enters the next national campaign with Penrose in the background rather than in the foreground.

"The party must keep faith with the public if it is to have any hope of regaining its vigor. It must reject reactionary leadership everywhere and at all times. This recrudescence of Penrose is a challenge to the progressive element in the Republican party everywhere. There must be no compromise with the forces of reaction. The party's house must be thoroughly cleaned and the party completely organized.

"It has been argued that Penrose represented the best chance of success at the election; that he had the machine and the support of the 'interests.' The selfish interests may profit by his success, but it will be a costly victory for the Republican party which brings him forward as an embodiment of its aims and an index of its character.

"It is natural for Republicans everywhere to grasp at an opportunity of showing their dissatisfaction with the Wilson administration. Many feel that any Republican is good enough to be used as an instrument to strike at the muddlers at Washington. But such a view is terribly short sighted. The Republican party two years ago went to the most crushing defeat it ever suffered under the leadership of men whose ideas and methods it had outgrown. More than half its members deserted because they were tired of bossism and standpatism. What will it tempt the party to recall to power the incompetents and reactionaries who wrecked the Taft administration?

"Even Pennsylvanians who want to hide their heads in the sand and vote for Penrose as a protest against the Wilson administration ought to realize that they are blocking their own frame. They are contributing to keep Republicanism on the defensive. Men with records like Penrose's are always on the defensive.

"A clean, aggressive party is the only kind of party that can win in this country under present conditions. If the Republican party is to meet the test, it must cut loose from the underlings who crippled it and robbed it of popularity."

COMMENCEMENT ORATIONS

mediaeval bards who felt no scruple about mingling Biblical stories with the myths of ancient time, that the kernel of truth is very hard to find. Among the primitive races, as with children, animal stories were much enjoyed and formed one of the first stages in literature. Undoubtedly the oldest of these tales is the epic of Raynard the Fox. This was one of the most important mediaeval contributions to the literature of the world, and the principal source from which subsequent writers draw their themes for fables.

The most romantic of the mediaeval traditions are the tales of Arthur and the round table, which Tennyson has made familiar to the modern reader. Undoubtedly the most mystical and spiritual of them all are the stories of Perceval, and the search for the sacred emblem which are known collectively as "The Legend of the Holy Grail."

The influence of this legend was profound and showed itself especially in spiritualizing the Arthurian narratives which had previously been of a worldly and even sensual character. A modern critic calls it a "purifying stream" and says that for several generations it cleansed and beautified the literature of many tongues; but that throughout the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries it lay frozen. Suddenly, in our own time, it has been irradiated and warmed to life again and the modern writers, who are reviving it in their poems, seem impelled by the same moral earnestness as the early writers, and by the same desire to show the way to seekers after the spiritual life.

Thus all down through the ages the myths have been repeated in poetry and prose with endless variations. As one writer has said, they form a sort of literary quarry from which almost every poet, consciously or unconsciously, takes some stories wherewith to build his own edifice. This knowledge will prove a useful companion to those more advanced in reading; an interpreter of paintings and sculpture to those who visit museums and art galleries; and last of all a pleasure to those in advanced life, in retracing a path of literature, which leads them back o days of childhood, and revives at every step the association of the morning of life.

Valedictory

And now, dear friends, the time has come for the Class of 1914 to say farewell. We have now reached the goal of our High School ambition and before leaving you and entering into our new life we wish to thank you for the interest you have taken in us. Dear friends, we appreciate your kindness and with grateful hearts we bid you farewell.

Members of the Board of Education: By your diligence and fervent devotion to the interests of our High School you have done much to make easy our path and to lighten our burdens. You have made new improvements that we may have greater opportunities of learning and acquiring such knowledge that will give us a higher sense of life and a loftier conception of citizenship. We beg you to accept our thanks and we bid you farewell.

To you, kind principal, who has ever had our welfare at heart, to you, also we bid adieu. With a devotion seldom equaled, with masterful tact and fervent watch you have stood at the helm and given direction to our High School journey. Under your discreet and faithful leadership we have bended to the oars and skimmed over the waves until at last in the harbor of success we turn to you to express our deep sense of gratitude. Your valued services to ourselves and to our High School will ever be held in grateful remembrance. Kind principal we bid you farewell.

Members of the Faculty: It is through your efforts that we are enabled this evening to receive the highest honor which our Alma Mater can bestow upon us. How you have labored to impress upon our minds those true thoughts and principles that we may escape the thousand pitfalls that surrounds us from youth to the grave. How often when we have faltered have you come to our assistance, roused our drooping energies and beckoned us on with suggestion and explanation. As we join in the ranks of this busy world struggling onward and upward as we hope, contending face to face with the temptations and foes that beset our paths, your influence and teaching sunk deep in our hearts will ever be a source of comfort and encouragement. Dear teachers we bid you an affectionate farewell.

Dear Schoolmates: It is with sorrow that we bid you farewell. For the past few years you have been our constant companions. With you we have studied and shared the joys of our High School life. As we separate we have but one word to say, "Always be true to your Alma Mater." By your diligent services may you honor ever illumine her course both in the school room and in the fields of contest. Schoolmates farewell.

Dear Classmates: I must now speak the word which will end forever our local class life, Farewell. That word means more than the signal of departure, more than the bidding of those bonds that will end our school days forever. It is the commencement of the great future and the adopting of cares and responsibilities that we have never felt. Together we have accomplished our High School task. Together, amid the kindly interest of our friends and companions we make this final parting but tomorrow in different directions each one must begin the untrodden path of life. Our journey will be largely as we make it.

Trials have beset us and fortune has not seemed to smile upon us as upon some former classes. She has been liberal with our crowns but we have learned to appreciate both the shade and the sun. Therefore we can press onward with unflinching steps over obstacles and through dangers with our gaze ever fixed on the goal of success. Dear classmates I bid you a fond and long farewell.

There's nothing small about the Ford--except its purchase price and cost to keep. In number of cars, in world-wide use, in quality of service to owners and in its daily performance it is the biggest car in the world. 530,000 users will testify to these facts.

It's the most talked of car in the world. Sterling merit has sold it to people of every nation the world over. Ford service and guarantee are both included in the price. This means a lot to any auto buyer.

Five Hundred Dollars is the price of the Ford Runabout; the Touring Car is Five Fifty, f. o. b. Detroit.
